

ARRESTED MAN HAS A RECORD

Glen Blood, With Many Aliases, Tells a Lurid Story to the Police.

STARTS IN CALIFORNIA

HAS HIS OWN LITTLE GAME FOR STEALING.

Glen Blood, alias Alton G. Harrison, alias Fred Grant, arrested by Detective R. Shannon Friday afternoon and lodged in the jail charged with burglary, may prove to be wanted in California. If his story is to be believed, Grant, who is a mere boy in appearance, although 24 years of age, is an old timer in criminal circles. He was arrested in this city suspected as a burglar, whose operations had been reported from several rooming houses in the city. Grant was picked up by the officers while attempting to sell a gold watch in a saloon. When taken to the jail he protested his innocence, claiming the timekeeper had been given to him by his mother. When searched two suits of clothing were found upon him and three watches. He had a story in explanation of the presence of the suits and watches, but has since admitted he stole the watches from a room in the Wabash lodging house. The two gold watches have been identified by roomers, who will appear against the prisoner at his trial, the date of which has not yet been set.

Has a Smooth Scheme.

Grant's method of stealing is smooth. After becoming acquainted with the habits of a roomer, he waits for a chance to slip into the room while it was unoccupied and he secreted beneath the bed. When the roomer was serving six asleep he made his haul, taking plenty of time to make a thorough search. Then, unlocking the door, he would creep out of the room and house without being seen or heard. Grant confessed to an officer yesterday that he was wanted in California, having escaped from a reform school near Los Angeles on the 24th day of last August, where he was serving six months' time on a charge of burglary. An effort was made to send him to jail this time, but he protested that he was a boy and his extremely youthful appearance bore him up in this story. He was confined in a tower in the industrial school, shackled and chained to a pole. On the day mentioned he managed to free himself from the chains by tying it to a leg of his bed he slipped from the window to the ground. He then went into a blacksmith shop where he worked and cut the shackles from his feet along the corridor, finding so he claims, the door asleep. As a climax to the daring scheme, he deliberately slipped a silver watch from the sleeping guard. The watch was one of the many found on him when arrested. The authorities at Los Angeles have been notified. Grant will be taken back to the industrial school in California when the local authorities have done with him.

STRONG EVIDENCE OF FAITH

F. C. Schramm Guarantees That Hymel Will Cure the Worst Case of Catarrh in Salt Lake.

When one of the most reputable druggists in Salt Lake guarantees that a medicine will effect a cure or he will refund the money, it speaks volumes as to the merits of that remedy. It is in this way that F. C. Schramm is selling Hymel, the treatment that has made so many cures of both acute and chronic cases of catarrh in Salt Lake and vicinity.

Hymel is not a pill, nor is it a liquid that has to be taken with a tablespoon or wineglass. Just breathe it by the aid of an inhaler that comes with every outfit, and benefit will be seen from the first treatment. It destroys all germ life in the air passages and lungs, and enriches and purifies the blood with additional ozone. It cures catarrh of the head and throat, or of the stomach, liver and kidneys. Wherever mucous membrane contains catarrhal germs, there Hymel will do its work of healing. When using this treatment, the air you breathe will be found like that on the mountains high above the sea level, where grow balsamic trees and plants which make the pure air by giving off volatile antiseptic fragrance that is healing to the respiratory organs.

The complete Hymel outfit costs but $1, and includes an inhaler, dropper and sufficient Hymel for several weeks' treatment.

Remember that if Hymel does not cure you, F. C. Schramm will refund your money. This is a good time to cure catarrh by this natural method and prevent catarrhal colds that are so common at this season.

For sale by F. C. Schramm, corner Main and Pine South streets, "where the cars stop."

HELP ARRIVES JUST IN TIME

Family Disappointed on the Utah Reservation Is Rendered Destitute Because of Sickness.

Rev. Peter A. Simpkin, pastor of Phillips Congregational church, discovered a family living in a tent between Fifth and Sixth South on State street, Saturday, whose condition was pitiable in the extreme. The father, John Kelly, lay on the floor of the miserable abode suffering from acute pneumonia, without sufficient food or clothing or medicine. The wife and seven children, unable to procure coal or food, were suffering from cold and hunger.

The family arrived in Salt Lake eight days ago from the Utah reservation, where they had traveled from Kansas in hopes of drawing a prize in the recent opening. They were unsuccessful and, having no means wherewith to move, remained on the reservation until driven out by poverty. They traveled to this city in a wagon, carrying a tent and a few household articles with them. On the way to this city the father was attacked with pneumonia. He recovered from this first attack, but fell a victim to a second and worse attack.

Captain M. M. Woods, superintendent of the Associated Charities, with Mr. Simpkin and other charitable people of this city, had the family removed to comfortable quarters in a home on Washington avenue. Medical attention was secured for the suffering man, and food, coal and clothes provided for the wife and children. Although the father is in bad condition as a result of his exposure his recovery is now assured. Had the man been left without attention a few days longer he would have died.

LAST DRUNK OF OLD YEAR

H. H. Wright Loses a "Jag" in 1905
Which He Acquired in 1905.

"Don't lock me up! It will be the last time I'll get drunk this year," pleaded H. H. Wright when brought in to the police station Sunday night, just before the old year winked out. The request was ignored by the desk sergeant, likewise by the stern officer of the law, who took from him all his belongings, and also by the jailer, who marched him behind the bars. The arrest of H. H. Wright was the last in 1905. He became intoxicated in 1905 and woke up sober and remorseful in 1906.

Frank Astilla, an Italian, was the first man arrested in 1906. The shriek of whistles and boom of guns, that greeted the New Year, had hardly died away when Astilla arrived at the station, escorted by a policeman. Signor Astilla was charged with vagrancy. The policeman believed him a vag and arrested him; the jailer took the policeman's word for it, and locked Signor Astilla behind the prison doors. Hence what the signor himself thought about it mattered little.

HARTENSTEIN TO APPEAL

Democratic Committee Decides That Election Contest Shall Be Carried to Higher Court.

The supreme court will be called upon to decide whether E. A. Hartenstein, Democrat, or W. Mont Perry, "American," entitled to represent the Fourth municipal ward in the city council. The Democratic committee of the Fourth ward met yesterday and decided to appeal from the decision of Judge M. L. Ritchie in the district court, which held that Mr. Perry was entitled to the seat. The Democratic city committee will cooperate in making the appeal.

Meanwhile Mr. Perry, under the statute governing election contest cases, will hold the seat and discharge the functions of councilman. He will be sworn in when the new council meets today.

COAL SHORTAGE STILL PREVAILS

Retailers Blame the Fuel Producers for Lack of Supply in Salt Lake.

IS NO LOW SUMMER RATE

DEALERS, THEREFORE, DIDN'T LAY IN QUANTITIES EARLY.

The coal shortage is still provoking Salt Lake householders and annoying commercial interests which demand a large fuel supply. Some dealers express the belief that the shortage will soon be a thing of the past, but when pressed to furnish data for such a belief, they confess that it is more of a hope than a belief.

Every retail dealer in Salt Lake is from five to ten days behind in filling orders. One retail dealer has caused an advertisement to be inserted in the daily papers announcing that, until further notice, he will not accept any new orders, but will devote his entire supply to filling orders already received; and, unless some relief is afforded pretty soon, other dealers are likely to follow his example.

Storage Supply Short.

Ever since the shortage started the wholesale companies have assigned two causes for it. One was a shortage in cars and the other the failure of coal consumers to buy in a storage supply of coal during the summer months, when the consumption was light. The car shortage trouble has virtually been obviated; railroad men say the cars and the other the failure of coal consumers to buy in a storage supply of coal during the summer months, when the consumption was light. The car shortage trouble has virtually been obviated; railroad men say the cars and the other the failure of coal consumers to buy in a storage supply of coal during the summer months, when the consumption was light.

So far as the failure to lay in a supply in the summer months is concerned, the retail dealers admit that such is a cause of the lack of fuel now; but they insist that in giving this reason the wholesale dealers have neglected to relate several details.

Didn't Give Special Rate.

In previous years, it is claimed, the wholesale dealers have been accustomed to make a special rate to retail dealers and to large individual consumers, such as smelters, during the summer months to encourage them to lay in a storage supply. This rate, it is claimed, was not made last summer, and no inducement was held out, with the result that few, if any, of the dealers or large consumers bought any considerable supply in advance.

This led to another trouble. So long as there was no demand during the summer months for storage coal, the mines did not operate full time nor require their full quota of men. The result was that miners drifted away, and when the sharp demand for coal came in the fall the mines were confronted not only with a car shortage, but with a lack of sufficient men to operate the mines at full capacity. These causes have all combined, the retail dealers say, to make the present shortage in cold weather.

Supplying Small Quantities.

Nobody who orders coal from his dealer can secure a full order. When a man orders five tons he gets one, and when he orders one he gets half a ton. Sarcastic dealers, goaded by customers' complaints, say they will soon be doing out coal in bathtubs if the wholesale dealers do not figure out some method to bring more coal into Salt Lake.

PASTOR GIVES RECEPTION

New Parsonage of Phillips Congregational Church Is Opened With a Social Event.

Rev. and Mrs. P. A. Simpkin gave a reception last night at the new parsonage of the Phillips Congregational church. The parsonage has been built adjoining the church on the corner of Seventh South and Seventh East streets. Those who assisted Mrs. Simpkin in receiving were Mrs. A. E. Payne, Mrs. C. A. Walker, Mrs. L. E. Page, Mrs. E. Chambers and Mrs. George Wake. Refreshments were served by Miss Irma Dunham, Miss Mattie McGillicuddy, Miss Fern Combs, Miss Della Wake, Miss Maggie Russell and Miss Ruth Chandler. Miss Irma Dunham and Miss Lily Turner sang solos.

Following the reception the annual business meeting of the church was held. Officers were elected for the ensuing year, and reports for the past year were received. The reports show that 1904 was the most prosperous year in the history of the church. More new members were taken in and more money collected than in any preceding year.

AMUSEMENTS.

"I'm worth six hundred thousand dollars." "Say, Lizzie, I been broke so long I can't think above two dollars." "I've got you got any money?" "I'm just 20 cents short of having a nickel."

"Did you ever think about working?" "Yes, once when I was delirious." "If that fellow knew what I thought about him he could have me arrested." "I bet on a horse named Caterpillar. He got off last and kept gettin' laster and laster and laster all the way around."

"I've a splendid ear for music." "Yes, but you don't sing with your ear." "They say I ought to go abroad and study." (Makes a horrible attempt at singing.)

"You ought to go somewhere and study." "Don't waste your money on the races. You can't beat 'em. Stay at home and have your morning paper served with the dope sheet cut out."

From "On His Uppers," by George Ade. "On His Uppers," by George Ade, is the feature of the new Orpheum bill, presented for the first time in Salt Lake last night. An audience that filled all the available seats and standing room attracted by the Ade reputation heard the skit. If anybody was disappointed he is very hard to please. There is a laugh in every line of the piece and Fred Lennox does the part of the broken-down sport trying to earn an honest dollar as an entertainer as if he was made for it. Nothing cleverer has been seen or heard here since the first of the year. The College Widow, another Ade work, readily is praised.

The programme at the Orpheum this week would be worth the price of admission. The first act, "On His Uppers," as it is, the playlet is only one feature, though the feature of the bill. There are at least four other turns that are sure to please all who see them, even as last night's audience was pleased. First in this list should be placed Herbert's dogs. Salt Lake has seen some intelligent canine performers, but Herbert's are entitled to the blue ribbon over all entries. His dogs seemed better than "almost human." They exhibited symptoms of a lot more intelligence than some humans you know. You may think you don't care for dog performers, but wait until you see Herbert's before you declare yourself.

Shack brothers, billed as "muscular marvels," opened the programme. They did some acrobatic stunts that proved them worthy of their billing. Lloyd Spencer, a monologue artist, followed. Mr. Spencer told a Chinese story cleverly enough, but the rest of his act was very below par. His jokes were old, old, old, and elicited only feeble titters. Mr. Spencer will have to brush up a lot if he expects to stay on the Orpheum circuit.

The Esmeralda sisters, accompanied by four flower girls, next obliged with a dance. Their turn was pretty, for they are pretty girls, but it could be improved by a few hard-working rehearsals. Had and if Mr. Wehe, director of the orchestra, would hurry up his music a shade more than a trifle.

"On His Uppers," followed the dancers and then Murry K. Hill, black-face, gave some clever parodies and told a few stories. Mr. Hill scored a decided success.

The last act, except for the kindred pictures, which were exceptionally good, was given by Herbert and his dogs. The same bill will be next obliged with a dance. The week, with matinees to-day, Thursday and Saturday. Play it, as Fred Farley says, in "On His Uppers," for the "one best bet."

"Dora Thorne" attracted another large audience to the Grand last night. The performance was again received with many manifestations of approval. The engagement closes tomorrow night. There will be a matinee tomorrow.
